"Horace Greeley is certainly one of the most remarkal men of the country or of the ace and as each, the history his life, written as faithfully as the work now notes note must be sagerly cought, and command an extensive axis.

"The story of his life from his youth up, is one of a sorbing interest, and contains much of piesaxart humor, restling wit, and attractive ancode." [Bangor Wing and Countries in the same of t

"Could Diogence nect him. (Horace Greeley, he would blow out his candie and be satisfied. The book morrover, is well and pleasantly written, and the author, Mr. J. Parton, is a very Boswell in admiration for his subject, and in the industry with which he has collected materia. [Arthur's Home Gazette. The his as factinating as a novel—just the book for every young man is study. "Buy it, reader, and when you become familiar with its contents, you will wish you were able to present a copy to every one of your friends." [Olean Jour." It is as factinating as a novel—just the book for every one familiar with its contents, you will wish you were able to present a copy to every one of your friends." [Olean Jour." It is a noble book to put into the hands of boys to rouse their ambition, and teach them the duty, the honor and the ultimate reward of patient industry and strict integrity. The facts recited are of the most interesting nature, and are well told by the writer, who manifests sympathy with his subject, and yet is not a bitled admires of his hero. We recomend this memoir as an excellent antidote to the autobiography of Barnum, and worthy of a place by the side of the life of Benjamin Franklin."

"This is the most interesting, the best written biography which has issued from the press for a long time. It is full of incident, and according to Carlyle is the best kind of a biography, for it tells use a thousand triffee about the great editor and his shabby dress. It gives a full complete hatory of Mr. Greeley, from his birth up to the present date; from his early condition of observity to his present high positions as chief editor of the ablest daily and weekly journal in America. The story of his fortunes is full of thrilling interest, and will have a powerful inducence over the young men of America. We cannot help contrasting this volume with the one written by Mr. Barnum. That is a continual exhibition of the success of humbugi, this of the trimmph of real worth.

Let the book be read in every houne in America.

In the attention of the public is requested to the EXAMINES, the principal periodical of the Unitarian denomination.

In the self-fact of the Unitarian denomination of the Unitarian denomination of the periodic periodic destails as the state of the single volumes, with the manner of destanguished scholars and devises, and men of a noble public spirit, as their authors, first appeared in these pages. Here Backminster, Worcester, Ware, Chamina, Greenwood, Norton, Dewey, and others first found their circle of readers. The list of the writers in this series of works for the last half-century, it is believed, would embusce the names of the majority of those who have been distinguished as literary men or scholars in New-England, and even over a wider region, during the interval of time.

The "EXAMINES" is published once in two munths, in numbers of one hundred and sity-six pages each, at four dollars a year. With this number, it commences a new volume, and a good opportunity is offered to subscribe.
